THE STATION is celebrating a decade of live Acoustic Sessions events in Murray Bridge, with the best production yet, free and open to all music lovers in the community.

The ten year anniversary of the annual Acoustic Sessions event will be held 6pm until 9pm Saturday 13 August, at The Station, 3-5 Railway Terrace, Murray Bridge.

The free all ages gig will showcase live music in an intimate setting, providing a professional platform for young musicians emerging through The Station's Band Connections program, led by facilitator "Crafty" from Music SA.

Talented performers from Murray Bridge and Adelaide will also perform.

Youth Development Officer Aiden Fargher said Acoustic Sessions was the most relaxed and laid back event on The Station's yearly performance calendar.

"The Station is a welcoming youth music venue, which is warm, relaxing and only a stone's throw from THE Murray Bridge," he said.

"It is a beautiful, historical building which lends itself to acoustic music.

"Get a coffee and cake, and enjoy the magical sound of young musicians, performing live acoustic music.

"From covers to originals, there is something for everyone, with lots of popular music genres played on the night. "

Local young person Hannah Smith, whose talents Aiden described as "world class", will coordinate this year's event.

"We are taking it back to the feeling of acoustic guitar around a warm campfire with loved ones," Hannah said.

Acoustic Sessions is an alcohol free event – coffee, drinks and food will be available.
