Hip Hop is a youth subculture gaining popularity in the region, which has birthed an all ages event to showcase the evolution of young artists in Murray Bridge.

The Hip Hop Connect Showcase on 10 August will feature beats, rhymes and dance carefully crafted by young people, nurtured by a youth music program at The Station.

Youth Officer Paul Ankerson said Hip Hop Connect was a new outlet for young people which had attracted mentors and students from the Hip Hop scene in Adelaide.

"The Hip Hop program and events are managed and coordinated by Aiden Subs who has brought an amazing amount of talent and experience in Hip Hop to The Station and the Murray Bridge community," said Mr Ankerson.

"Hip Hop has a strong following in our community and The Station provides expertise and facilities to support young people to write, record and perform their music."

The Hip Hop Connect Showcase will be held 6pm until 9pm Saturday 10 August 2019 at The Station, in Murray Bridge.

The event is free for all ages - food and drink will be available.

Mr Ankerson said the showcase would provide the ultimate Hip Hop cultural experience for local youth.

"For nearly a year now, the Hip-Hop Connect family have been meeting every week, learning how to make beats, recording songs, collaborating with each other, rapping/singing on the live stage," he said.

"At the showcase you will get to see what they've been doing live."

Performers will include local and Adelaide based artists: Adelaide Alliance Breaking Crew, The Official Skeptik, Lil Creep, Inquest, T.A.K.S, 2KWK - GEE, Stacks and Eternal.
